
K Basins Closure Project Holds Year-End Celebration

The K Basins Closure Project (KBC) celebrated the successes of fiscal year 2006 with an all-employee barbeque and United Way Rally Sept. 21. Pete Knollmeyer, Fluor Hanford vice president, and Dave Brockman, DOE's federal project director for the work, thanked employees on several fronts: for progress on containerizing the sludge in the KE Basin; removing hundreds of tons of debris from both basins; and installing, testing and completing the contractor Operational Readiness Review for the hose-in-hose sludge transfer system. They also thanked the project team for substantial progress in engineering and designing the sludge- treatment system. ■
