

HPMC Occupational Medical Services
Behavioral Health Services
Provider Biographical Information

Janice Kusch, Ph.D.

Dr. Janice Kusch is a licensed clinical psychologist with over 25 years of clinical and business management experience. She has worked for Swedish Medical Center, Washington State University, and the Veterans Health Administration developing a wide range of programming supporting quality mental health care in our state. Dr. Kusch has served on national committees for improving veterans' access to mental health resources and care. A former alumni and clinical faculty member at WSU, she currently serves as manager of Behavioral Health Services at the HPMC Occupational Medical Services clinic, providing psychological services and working in collaboration with stakeholders from across the Hanford Site developing wellness programming and soft skills training for team building and enhanced leadership.

Belinda Powell, Psy.D.

Dr. Belinda Powell is a licensed clinical psychologist with over 20 years of experience in clinical and medical services. She has worked extensively within the military, hospital, neuro-rehabilitation, and criminal justice settings. Dr. Powell is also a veteran, which collectively with her training and clinical experience, has provided opportunities to work with patients from all walks of life. She currently provides services for HPMC Occupational Medical Services in the Behavioral Health Services Department that include Human Reliability Program assessments, fitness-for-duty assessments, and Employee Assistance Program counseling to Hanford employees. She received her master's and doctorate in clinical psychology degrees from Spalding University with current licenses in Kansas and Washington state.

Kim Lindholm, M.Ed., LMHC

Kim Lindholm, is a licensed mental health counselor in the state of Washington with over 25 years of experience. She earned a master's degree from Heritage University in 1996. She has experience working with a broad range of mental health and substance abuse diagnoses. Kim's therapeutic orientation is in cognitive behavioral therapy with a collaborative and supportive approach. She is a native to this area and an active member of the community, bringing a wealth of resources to the individuals and couples she serves through the Employee Assistance Program provided by Behavioral Health Services at the HPMC Occupational Medical Services clinic. Kim's role also includes development and presentation of mental health related programs to the employees of the Hanford Site.

